

Mrs. William Moore Dies In Tragic Accident

A Marion, O., woman was killed and 12 persons were injured in auto accidents in Pickaway county during the weekend.

Mrs. Goldie Moore, 42, of 262 N. State street, Marion, was fatally injured, and her husband, William L. Moore, 47, was seriously hurt Saturday evening when their Ford coupe left a curve on Route 23 at Valley View, struck a culvert and burned.

Coroner C. E. Bowers said Mrs. Moore's death was caused by a broken neck. He returned a verdict of accidental death. In addition to the broken neck Mrs. Moore had fractures of both legs and the left arm and a skull fracture. Her nose was practically cut from her face.

Mr. Moore is in Berger hospital suffering a possibly fractured skull, a broken nose, lacerations on the scalp, face, chin, right leg and ankle. He has first and second degree burns on the left foot and leg. Mr. Moore is a foundry worker.

Enroute To Ironton

No other car was involved in the accident, which happened about 6:15 o'clock. The Moores were traveling south enroute to Ironton.

Mr. Moore apparently lost control of the car. It left the pavement, traveled on the berm for a considerable distance, hit the culvert and whirled around without overturning. It burst into flames immediately.

J. J. Boggs, 480 S. Third street, Columbus, told Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver he was sitting in the Valley View Inn when the accident happened. He said he heard the crash and noticed the car burst into flames. Mr. Boggs drove his car from the inn to the place the accident happened at the bottom of the hill and helped pull Mrs. Moore from under the car and take Mr. Moore out of the car. Mrs. Moore, the deputy was told, was thrown out of the car and her feet and legs were under a running board. Mr. Moore's left foot was caught in the car pedals. His leg was jerked loose from the pedals.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Moore were brought to the hospital in the Schlegel ambulance. Mrs. Moore was dead when she reached the hospital. Her body was returned to the Schlegel funeral home in Ashville and taken to Marion Sunday to the C. E. Curtis funeral home.

The scene of the accident is about seven miles north of Circleville. The car was demolished. Deputy Sheriffs Weaver and Robert Armstrong investigated the accident.

Eight Hurt In Crash

Eight persons were injured about midnight Saturday when two cars were in a head-on crash on the Route 22 detour about four miles west of Circleville.

Two of those hurt are in Berger hospital. They are Girdle W. Doolin, 26, of Circleville Route 5, who has a fractured right arm below the elbow, broken ribs, cuts and bruises, and his wife, Mona, 19, who received a severely cut chin and bruises. Six other persons were taken to the hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises. There were John Smith, John LeMaster, Mary Ellen and Pearl Doolin, all of Circleville, Route 5, and Charles Payne, 19, of 706 N. Fourth street, and Robert Jackson, 134 Lafayette street, both of Greenfield, O.

The cars were driven by Payne and Doolin. Payne was driving eastward, Doolin westward. Jack-

VANDY ON WAY EAST TO PITCH FOR CINCINNATI

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 — Idle since Aug. 15 because of a shoulder injury, Johnny "No-Hit" Vandy, today was to rejoin his Cincinnati Reds' teammates but was not expected to take the mound for a day or two. The Reds were to play the New York Giants today.

The boy wonder had been under the care of Dr. Lee Jensen, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who cured Vander Meer's shoulder injury a few years ago.

Club officials and fellow players were confident that Johnny would regain his pitching prowess unless he suffered a relapse. He has appeared in only 25 games this year, sometimes for only one inning, and has won five and lost eight games.

100,000 NAMES NECESSARY FOR STATE LAW VOTE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 28 — The campaign to muster 144,000 signatures on petitions calling for a referendum on the civil service reorganization bill appeared doomed to failure today unless more than 100,000 persons sign up between now and midnight Sept. 5, effective date of the act.

County chairmen met yesterday at Democratic state headquarters at the call of State Chairman Arthur L. Limbach, who was not present although he had planned to fly here from Fort Knox, Ky., where he is in training as a reserve officer.

Former Gov. George White presided and announced that about 25,000 signatures had been turned in. The chairman promised 100,000 additional signatures would be turned in before next Monday.

Plans were made for district meetings Wednesday in an effort to speed up the campaign and former State Chairman Francis W. Poulson was appointed to raise $2,500 to finance the final drive. He immediately sent telegrams to prominent Democrats asking them for $50 each.

The civil service reorganization bill would add a third member to the civil service commission. Democrats are objecting to the bill because it would remove legal protection from provisional employees.

HITLER NEEDS MORE TIME TO MOVE UNITS TO FRONT

NAZI DIVISIONS ON POLE BORDER TOTAL ONLY 35

25 More Groups Required To Bring Quick End, French Declare

By H. R. Knickerbocker

PARIS, Aug. 28—Adolf Hitler requires another three to five days to bring his army on the Eastern frontier up to striking strength, according to latest information received in Paris today by the authorities entrusted with the task of learning enemy movements.

Therefore, Hitler is not expected to begin a war before Thursday if he intends to begin it at all.

It is admitted that to obtain and transmit from Germany any information regarding troop movements at this moment is precisely as difficult as in wartime.

Nevertheless, allied authorities believe that they know within 10 percent the number and disposition of divisions of the German army.

According to these expert sources, Germany requires around 60 divisions at the Polish frontier in order to carry out Hitler's plan to crush Poland's fifty divisions in the shortest time possible.

35 Divisions Present

Until today, however, German divisions on the Polish border number thirty-five.

Hitler therefore, according to best military opinion in Paris, needs to move another twenty-five divisions East. Under the circumstances now prevailing in Germany, with all railroad and automobile transport monopolized by the army, it is estimated he could move 25 divisions totalling 375,000 men in a minimum of from three to a maximum of five days.

The large majority of Europe is now inclined to believe that Hitler could not avoid war if he wanted to, because he has gone too far to retreat. But a minority of skeptics observe that he is obviously impressed with failure of his anticipation that the allies would collapse and surrender Poland to him after signing of the Russo-German pact.

It was this failure which induced him to ask British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson to carry his so-called new proposals to England.

But the allies did not merely fail to collapse. Over the weekend every vestige of appeasement and every suggestion of "another Munich" disappeared.

Fighting Spirit Surprises

The allies are showing such a fighting spirit as would never have been believed possible a year ago.

WARSAW—More border attacks by Germans were reported today as the populace went calmly but speedily about the task of mobilizing for war, and officialdom again voiced its determination to fight Germany in case of an attack.

"Conversations between Germany and England or Germany and France are matters concerning those countries alone," said the foreign office spokesman, "but we are being kept informed of these negotiations."

"If war should come, we do not think we shall have to fight alone."

Diplomatic developments over the weekend have not relieved tension, the foreign office held.

"Continued incidents along the Polish frontier show that the Germans are determined on aggression."

Among the incidents alleged by the foreign office and press were these:

An armed German party attacked a Polish factory at Lignozna, near Szygłowski in Upper Silesia, penetrating Polish territory 100 yards and throwing bombs. The attack was repulsed by a Polish military patrol reinforced by a platoon of citizens and militiamen.

German police, said another charge, surrounded the Polish consulate at Marienwerder, East Prussia and cut the telephone and telegraph wires. German secret police agents raided the Polish secondary school at Marienwerder and arrested the teachers and students, who were driven off in trucks to an unknown destination, it was asserted.

MORE U. S. CASH PROVIDED FOR ROAD PROGRAM

Receipt of $19,200 from P.W.A. as the second grant on the county's road improvement program was announced Monday by the county commissioners.

This makes a total of $33,600 paid by P.W.A. on the project, a previous grant of $14,400 having been made. The final grant will be made, officials explained, after a P.W.A. auditor completes a check of the books on the improvement. The total amount to be paid by the government will be about $45,000. The county's share was $53,000.

The P.W.A. project included surface treating about 70 miles of county roads. The work has been completed. T. D. Van Camp & Sons, of Columbus, were contractors.

Developments today in the international situation:

LONDON—Britain closed the Mediterranean and Baltic seas to British shipping. The cabinet gave final approval to its "no" reply to Chancellor Hitler's demands on Poland, and Parliament was summoned for tomorrow.

BERLIN—While Hitler certainly will reject proposals for direct Berlin-Warsaw negotiations, authorities said, the possibility of a brief "truce" during which a conference of the powers might be arranged, was not ruled out.

PARIS—Press and radio censorship were decreed as Germany closed the French frontier at Strasburg.

AMSTERDAM—Army mobilization was announced.

WARSAW—More border attacks by Germans were reported, while Poland, continuing mobilization, held to its policy of "no surrender."

TOKYO — Drastic reorientation of Japanese foreign policy was seen as Gen. Abe was named to form a new cabinet to succeed the one which resigned because of the Russo-German pact.

Warsaw Report of Plot On Hitler's Life Denied

LONDON, Aug. 28—Frustration of a plot against the life of Chancellor Hitler on Saturday was reported in a Warsaw radio broadcast, Exchange Telegraph said today.

(The German propaganda ministry in Berlin issued a denial of the rumor.)

The broadcast, according to Exchange, said:

"Saturday morning the German gestapo (secret police) discovered a plot in Berlin in which, besides military elements, members of the Reichstag and some Nazi party members were involved."

"Plans to call a meeting of the Reichstag to hear from Hitler the text of his proposals to England were abandoned, and a strong military contingent was posted near the Kroll opera house."

"The gestapo discovered in the opera house (where the Reichstag ordinarily meets) complete preparations for an attempt on Hitler. As a result, many arrests have been made in Berlin and throughout the Reich."

DIES AND AIDES START PROBE OF 'SILVER SHIRTS'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—Testimony on the activities of the Silver Shirts, an anti-Semitic organization, was begun today by the Dies committee as it announced that it had postponed examination of Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party.

Chairman Martin Dies (D) of Texas, who heads the special inquiry into subversive activities and foreign propaganda, said that Browder would be heard at a later date. He said that necessity of Browder to attend a party caucus in Chicago tomorrow had caused the postponement because the committee wished to keep the Communist leader on the stand several days.

Slated to start testimony was a committee investigator who has spent several weeks inquiring into the various anti-Semitic organizations of William Dudley Pelley, Van Dyked-mustached leader of the Silver Shirts. It was the work of this investigator which led to the perjury charges being recommended against Frazier Gardner of Washington, D. C., when he attempted to obtain a job with the committee as an investigator while on Pelley's payroll.

ONE MAN SLAIN, SECOND INJURED TRYING ROBBERY

CINCINNATI, Aug. 28 — One alleged gunman was dead today and another was reported in critical condition in a hospital as the result of an attempted holdup of a cafe at South Fort Mitchell, Ky.

The dead man was unidentified, and police said his companion was Alfred Smith, 23, of Glasgow, Ky.

Authorities said the robbery attempt was frustrated when the proprietor of the cafe, Ben Snyder, 29, former police chief of South Fort Mitchell, shot and killed one of the men as he grappled with Snyder's 58-year-old father, Leo.

As the second man opened fire on Snyder, police said the former officer returned the shot, which struck him in the chest.

UNKNOWN ASKED TO TRY TO FORM TOKYO CABINET

TOKYO, Aug. 28—With General Nobuyuki Abe, a comparative unknown, formally asked by Premier Hirohito to form a cabinet, Japan today was expected to plunge into a new foreign policy based on isolation, divorce from European entanglements, and more energetic prosecution of the war in China.

Because of the Russo-German non-aggression pact, which split up the anti-comintern front, Baron Kichiro Hiranuma and his cabinet resigned early today.

The new situation, they explained, "needs new leaders and a new policy."

Appointment of Gen. Abe was virtually cut and dried even before the Hiranuma cabinet quit. He has the approval of the fighting forces, and, in spite of his comparative obscurity, is admired in political quarters for his administrative ability.

He was war minister for a brief time in 1928.

PARIS BELIEVES PATH IS CLOSED TO COMPROMISE

Decree Issued To Darken French Capital; Premier Wins Full Support

PARIS, Aug. 28—Resistance by the people of France to any further expansion by Nazi Germany stiffened appreciably today as the French government, by decreeing a press and radio censorship admitted its own belief that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler has closed the door to peace.

As evacuation of Paris proceeded speedily, publication of the letters exchanged between Hitler and Premier Edouard Daladier brought about a new firmness on the part of the average Frenchman.

He saw Daladier's attitude as a sound and honorable one, and that of Hitler as a tissue of fabrication and belligerence.

Hitler's reference to alleged Polish demands on Germany and his general tone indicated to France that the Fuehrer is no longer seeking mere revision of the Treaty of Versailles, but that any additional German expansion would mean nothing less than German domination over Europe.

Children Ordered Away

All children now at vacation camps were ordered not to return to the city pending developments.

That "this means war" was the consensus in government quarters after Premier Edouard Daladier interpreted a letter from Hitler as a rejection of a new French appeal for direct Polish-German negotiations.

As outlined in a war ministry bulletin, the Hitler-Daladier exchanges began when the Fuehrer summoned Ambassador Robert Coulondre to the chancellery. There Hitler "made known that he could no longer tolerate the situation which existed in Poland, and that he deplored that German blood and French blood might be spilled as a result of measures

BROWN APPEALS COURT'S SENTENCE TO OHIO PEN

Carlos Brown, who resides north of Circleville along Route 23, was sentenced to not less than three years nor more than 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary, Monday, by Judge Meeker Terwilliger. The sentence was imposed on a statutory charge after the judge overruled a motion for a new trial. Mr. Brown was found guilty by a jury.

Counsel for Mr. Brown gave notice of intention to appeal the case to the Court of Appeals and bond was fixed at $1,000. The bond was provided and Mr. Brown was released pending appeal.

Fuehrer Marks Time As London Drafts Answer

Mussolini Bringing Pressure To Gain Conference; Henderson's Return To Germany Vital; John Bull Acts

LONDON, Aug. 28—Carrying Great Britain's final word to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler on the question of war or peace, British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson hopped off from Heston aerodrome for Berlin at noon today.

LONDON, Aug. 28—Europe's frenzied preparations for war reached a breath-taking climax today when Great Britain closed the Mediterranean and Baltic seas to all British shipping. Holland mobilized her armed forces and France awaited a final order calling every last available man to the tricolor.

At the same time the British parliament was summoned to meet at 8:45 a. m. tomorrow (Circleville time).

Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax remained at 10 Downing Street throughout the morning, supervising transcription of the complete draft of Britain's reply to Hitler which the cabinet has now unanimously approved.

There was still no statement regarding Sir Neville Henderson's departure, but there were reports it might again be postponed, possibly until after Parliament has assembled.

BERLIN, Aug. 28—Chancellor Hitler, authoritative quarters said today, is certain to reject Britain's plan for direct Berlin-Warsaw negotiations.

But the last 24 hours have indicated that Hitler has not yet "pulled the last rabbit out of his hat," and there is a likelihood that some basis for a compromise will be found, with a resultant "truce."

This might enable representatives of the major powers to come together over a council table—if such arrangements are found possible.

Premier Mussolini of Italy is bringing strong pressure to bear for such a parley, yet at the same time he is fully backing up Hitler.

Observers regarded as significant the fact that German afternoon papers prominently displayed the fact that the supreme council of the U. S. S. R. is meeting in Moscow today to hear a speech on foreign policy by Vyacheslav M. Molotov, premier and foreign commissar.

Whether closer cooperation with Moscow in the present crisis, such as open pressure on Warsaw, will become evident was awaited in Germany with keen interest.

Afternoon papers heavily played up the Hitler exchange with Premier Daladier of France, Nazi quarters insisting that Daladier misrepresented the facts when the Frenchman insisted the Fuehrer closed the door to any mediation.

Henderson Awaited

The chancellor spent another busy day conferring with key men while he awaited the return of British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson from the London cabinet meeting.

So far as can be learned, Hitler is willing to stay his hand until

The final grant will be made, officials explained, after a P.W.A. auditor completes a check of the books on the improvement. The total amount to be paid by the government will be about $45,000. The county's share was $53,000.

The P.W.A. project included surface treating about 70 miles of county roads. The work has been completed. T. D. Van Camp & Sons, of Columbus, were contractors.

On European Front

Developments today in the international situation:
LONDON—Britain closed the Mediterranean and Baltic seas to British shipping. The cabinet gave final approval to its "no" reply to Chancellor Hitler's demands on Poland, and Parliament was summoned for tomorrow.
BERLIN—While Hitler certainly will reject proposals for direct Berlin-Warsaw negotiations, authorities said, the possibility of a brief "truce" during which a conference of the powers might be arranged, was not ruled out.
PARIS—Press and radio censorships were decreed as Germany closed the French frontier at Strasbourg.
AMSTERDAM—Army mobilization was announced.
WARSAW—More border attacks by Germans were reported, while Poland, continuing mobilization, held to its policy of "no surrender."
TOKYO—Drastic reorientation of Japanese foreign policy was seen as Gen. Abe was named to form a new cabinet to succeed the one which resigned because of the Russo-German pact.

Warsaw Report of Plot On Hitler's Life Denied

LONDON, Aug. 28—Frustration of a plot against the life of Chancellor Hitler on Saturday was reported in a Warsaw radio broadcast, Exchange Telegraph said today.

(The German propaganda ministry in Berlin issued a denial of the rumor.)

The broadcast, according to Exchange, said:

"Saturday morning the German gestapo (secret police) discovered a plot in Berlin in which, besides military elements, members of the Reichstag and some Nazi party members were involved.

"Plans to call a meeting of the Reichstag to hear from Hitler the text of his proposals to England were abandoned, and a strong military contingent was posted near the Kroll opera house.

"The gestapo discovered in the opera house (where the Reichstag ordinarily meets) complete preparations for an attempt on Hitler. As a result, many arrests have been made in Berlin and throughout the Reich."

POLES DECLARE NAZIS CONTINUE BORDER THREATS

WARSAW, Aug. 28—More border attacks by Germans were reported today as the populace went calmly but speedily about the task of mobilizing for war, and officialdom again voiced its determination to fight Germany in case of an attack.

"Conversations between Germany and England or Germany and France are matters concerning those countries alone," said the foreign office spokesman, "but we are being kept informed of these negotiations.

"If war should come, we do not think we shall have to fight alone."

Diplomatic developments over the weekend have not relieved tension, the foreign office held.

"Continued incidents along the Polish frontier show that the Germans are determined on aggression."

Among the incidents alleged by the foreign office and press were these:

An armed German party attacked a Polish factory at Lignoz, near Szydlowski in Upper Silesia, penetrating Polish territory 100 yards and throwing bombs. The attack was repulsed by a Polish military patrol reinforced by a platoon of citizens and militiamen.

German police, said another charge, surrounded the Polish consulate at Marienwerder, East Prussia and cut the telephone and telegraph wires. German secret police agents raided the Polish secondary school at Marienwerder and arrested the teachers and students, who were driven off in trucks to an unknown destination, it was asserted.

ICE PLANT LOOTED

The theft of $5.70 from a drawer in the office at the Circleville Ice Co., Saturday night, was reported to police.

PARIS BELIEVES PATH IS CLOSED TO COMPROMISE

Decree Issued To Darken French Capital; Premier Wins Full Support

PARIS, Aug. 28—Resistance by the people of France to any further expansion by Nazi Germany stiffened appreciably today as the French government, by decreeing a press and radio censorship admitted its own belief that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler has closed the door to peace.

As evacuation of Paris proceeded speedily, publication of the letters exchanged between Hitler and Premier Edouard Daladier brought about a new firmness on the part of the average Frenchman.

He saw Daladier's attitude as a sound and honorable one, and that of Hitler as a tissue of fabrication and belligerence.

Hitler's reference to alleged Polish demands on Germany and his general tone indicated to France that the Fuehrer is no longer seeking mere revision of the Treaty of Versailles, but that any additional German expansion would mean nothing less than German domination over Europe.

Children Ordered Away

All children now at vacation camps were ordered not to return to the city pending developments.

That "this means war" was the consensus in government quarters after Premier Edouard Daladier interpreted a letter from Hitler as a rejection of a new French appeal for direct Polish-German negotiations.

As outlined in a war ministry bulletin, the Hitler-Daladier exchanges began when the Fuehrer summoned Ambassador Robert Coulondre to the chancellery. There Hitler "made known that he could no longer tolerate the situation which existed in Poland, and that he deplored that German blood and French blood might be spilled as a result of measures (Continued on Page Two)

ONE MAN SLAIN, SECOND INJURED TRYING ROBBERY

CINCINNATI, Aug. 28 — One alleged gunman was dead today and another was reported in critical condition in a hospital as the result of an attempted holdup of a cafe at South Fort Mitchell, Ky. The dead man was unidentified, and police said his companion was Alfred Smith, 23, of Glasgow, Ky.

Authorities said the robbery attempt was frustrated when the proprietor of the cafe, Ben Snyder, 29, former police chief of South Fort Mitchell, shot and killed one of the men as he grappled with Snyder's 58-year-old father, Leo. As the second man opened fire on Snyder, police said the former officer returned the shot, which struck him in the chest.

BROWN APPEALS COURT'S SENTENCE TO OHIO PEN

Carlos Brown, who resides north of Circleville along Route 23, was sentenced to not less than three years nor more than 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary, Monday, by Judge Meeker Terwilliger. The sentence was imposed on a statutory charge after the judge overruled a motion for a new trial. Mr. Brown was found guilty by a jury.

Counsel for Mr. Brown gave notice of intention to appeal the case to the Court of Appeals and bond was fixed at $1,000. The bond was provided and Mr. Brown was released pending appeal.

Fuehrer Marks Time As London Drafts Answer

Mussolini Bringing Pressure To Gain Conference; Henderson's Return To Germany Vital; John Bull Acts

LONDON, Aug. 28—Carrying Great Britain's final word to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler on the question of war or peace, British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson hopped off from Heston aerodrome for Berlin at noon today.

LONDON, Aug. 28—Europe's frenzied preparations for war reached a breath-taking climax today when Great Britain closed the Mediterranean and Baltic seas to all British shipping. Holland mobilized her armed forces and France awaited a final order calling every last available man to the tricolor.

At the same time the British parliament was summoned to meet at 8:45 a. m. tomorrow (Circleville time).

Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax remained at 10 Downing Street throughout the morning, supervising transcription of the complete draft of Britain's reply to Hitler which the cabinet has now unanimously approved.

There was still no statement regarding Sir Neville Henderson's departure, but there were reports it might again be postponed, possibly until after Parliament has assembled.

BERLIN, Aug. 28—Chancellor Hitler, authoritative quarters said today, is certain to reject Britain's plan for direct Berlin-Warsaw negotiations.

But the last 24 hours have indicated that Hitler has not yet "pulled the last rabbit out of his hat," and there is a likelihood that some basis for a compromise will be found, with a resultant "truce."

This might enable representatives of the major powers to come together over a council table—if such arrangements are found possible.

Premier Mussolini of Italy is bringing strong pressure to bear for such a parley, yet at the same time he is fully backing up Hitler.

Observers regarded as significant the fact that German afternoon papers prominently displayed the fact that the supreme council of the U. S. S. R. is meeting in Moscow today to hear a speech on foreign policy by Vyacheslav M. Molotov, premier and foreign commissar.

Whether closer cooperation with Moscow in the present crisis, such as open pressure on Warsaw, will become evident was awaited in Germany with keen interest.

Afternoon papers heavily played up the Hitler exchange with Premier Daladier of France, Nazi quarters insisting that Daladier misrepresented the facts when the Frenchman insisted the Fuehrer closed the door to any mediation.

Henderson Awaited
The chancellor spent another busy day conferring with key men while he awaited the return of British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson from the London cabinet meeting.

So far as can be learned, Hitler is willing to stay his hand until (Continued on Page Two)

MAE TO INFORM COURT OF HER SON'S ADDRESS
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28—As the consequence of her $12,000 a year support suit against Prince David Mdivani, Mae Murray appeared before Superior Judge B. J. Scheinman today to reveal something she has stoutly refused to tell her former mate.

It's the whereabouts of their 12-year-old Koran David Mdivani. The famous star of the silent screen era is also to be called on to show cause why the boy should not be brought to California.

Miss Murray's previous refusals to tell where Koran is living was prompted by fear that the prince might take him from her forcibly, she declared. Mdivani wants to have the lad, but legally through a custody suit which is to be filed, his attorney, W. I. Gilbert, Jr., told Judge Scheinman. Mdivani obtained an order requiring the appearance of the attractive actress.

PARIS BELIEVES PATH IS CLOSED TO COMPROMISE

he might be forced to take to settle the situation.

In his reply, it was stated, "Daladier made himself guarantor of Poland's position for mutual recourse to free and conciliatory methods.

"Daladier affirmed that no man of feeling could understand why war should break out without at least a new and direct attempt at settlement between Germany and Poland, and he declared himself ready to make all attempts to aid such an attempt."

When Coulondre presented this to Hitler, said the war ministry, "Hitler declared he could not accept the proposals Daladier suggested."

Paris Darkened
For the first time last night Paris was completely darkened, except for a few sentinel lights.

All public telephone pay stations were ordered closed down as the service began to jam.

England's delay in sending a reply to Hitler until today, according to Paris-Midi's Rome correspondent, was a maneuver to give Premier Mussolini time to "work on" Hitler.

Intense diplomatic activities continued throughout the day. Premier Daladier received the Polish ambassador, while Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet saw the British and Dutch envoys and the papal nuncio.

The prefects of all departments were instructed to start immediate payment of subsidies to the families of reservists called to the colors.

Street traffic in Paris was almost at a standstill owing to evacuation of the capital by countless thousands heeding the government's warning. The international telephone exchange refused to accept calls to Germany.

Tonight's blackout of Paris will be virtually complete. Authorities ordered all signs and shop lights out, and only emergency street lights and a few necessary cafe lights will be permitted.

JAP AVIATORS PREPARING FOR ANOTHER JUMP

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 28—Refreshed after a night's rest, seven Japanese journalist-aviators prepared to take off today on the second leg of their projected globe-circling goodwill flight. Their twin-motored monoplane, the Nippon, landed at Nome yesterday afternoon after bucking 2,000 miles of hazardous ocean weather.

Commanded by Sumitoshi Nakao, holder of a Berlin-to-Tokyo flight record, the Japanese-built airship started from Hokkaido island in the North Japanese group Saturday afternoon and spanned the North Pacific and Bering sea in 16 hours.

Weather permitting, they expect to fly from Nome to Whitehorse, Yukon territory, then to Vancouver, B. C., Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Kansas City, New York and Miami.

Henderson returns, after which the chancellor will decide on the next stage of developments.

Posters today proclaimed that gasoline must be sold to public conveyances, but owners of private cars cannot buy any.

Meanwhile housewives are striving to accustom themselves to new regulations rationing food and clothing for domestic use.

Enforced rationing is bringing home the fact that war is in the air, and that reminds many housewives of the bad times they suffered during the World War.

Many are grumbling about the difficulty of running their households and the formalities at shops which, they say, interfere with their shopping.

Many others, however, actually have discovered that in some respects their households are better off under the rationing system.

Soap Order Hurts
Households are hit hardest by restrictions on the sale of soap.

Only a quarter of a pound of soap per person is allowed each month, exclusively of toilet soap. This means that laundries will have a hard time handling their business, and Germans at home will be compelled to apply the utmost economy in the laundry.

Berlin and Paris were at odds today over the significance of the letter Hitler sent to Premier Daladier of France. The Fuehrer challenged the premier's assertion that Daladier's offer to mediate was rejected.

Daladier's attitude was regarded in Berlin as a misrepresentation, which gave the world an erroneous impression.

The chancellor, however, was uncompromising in his demand for return of the Polish Corridor and Danzig. His letter said, in part: "It is impossible for a nation of honor to renounce almost 2,000,000 people (the German minority in Poland) and see them ill-treated on our own frontiers."

"Therefore I have raised the clear demand that Danzig and the Corridor must be returned to Germany."

"The Macedonian (terrorist) conditions on our Eastern frontier must be removed."

"I see no way of being able to persuade Poland, which shields herself from attack under the protection of her guarantees (by Britain and France) to accept a peaceful solution."

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28—A check today revealed no damage was caused by a short, sharp earthquake which shook Los Angeles, Hollywood and other communities within a circumference of 12 miles at 11:45 o'clock last night.

Force of the shock varied in intensity. Although frame buildings creaked alarmingly and dishes rattled, no objects fell to the floors. Long Beach, devastated by the earthquake of 1933, did not feel the tremor.

Mrs. William Moore Dies In Tragic Accident

son was riding with Payne. All of the others were in the Doolin car. Five of those hurt were brought to the hospital by Deputy Sheriff Robert E. Adkins, two in the Albaugh ambulance and one by Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver. They were treated by Dr. E. L. Montgomery.

Blowout Causes Crash

Five persons escaped serious injury about 3:15 p. m. Sunday when a rear tire on the car in which they were riding blew out causing the car to swerve and overturn on Route 22 just east of Circleville.

Three women were treated in Berger hospital for minor cuts and bruises. They were Mrs. Mae Faulk, 58, and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Faulk, 23, both of 153 Park street, Grove City, Pa., and Helen Linn, 30, of Elmhurst, Pa. Others in the car were Thomas Faulk Sr. and Thomas Faulk, Jr., driver of the car.

The front of an auto driven by Oscar Reinschell, Union Furnace, was damaged about 2 p. m. Saturday when involved in a collision with the city's dump truck, driven by Allen Trego, Huston street. The accident happened at Mound and Pickaway streets. The truck was being driven north on Pickaway street. The car was going west on Mound street. No one was hurt.

Benjamin L. Lewis, 31, of 1815 Franklin avenue, Columbus, posted bond of $115 in Mayor W. B. Cady's court to report for a hearing at 7 p. m. Monday on a charge of driving when intoxicated.

Lewis was arrested by police at 4:30 a. m. Sunday after his car collided with the parked car of Kenneth Duto, parked in front of his home at 627 S. Court street. Mr. Duto said the damage to his car, included a rear fender, bumper, light and wheel amounted to about $50.

MAE TO INFORM COURT OF HER SON'S ADDRESS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28 — As the consequence of her $12,000 a year support suit against Prince David Mdivani, Mae Murray appeared before Superior Judge B. J. Scheinman today to reveal something she has stoutly refused to tell her former mate.

It's the whereabouts of their 12-year-old Koran David Mdivani. The famous star of the silent screen era is also to be called on to show cause why the boy should not be brought to California.

Miss Murray's previous refusals to tell where Koran is living was prompted by fear that the prince might take him from her forcibly, she declared. Mdivani wants to have the lad, but legally through a custody suit which is to be filed, his attorney, W. I. Gilbert, Jr., told Judge Scheinman. Mdivani obtained an order requiring the appearance of the attractive actress.

LAKE VICTIM HUNTED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28—Coast-guardsmen today searched Lake Erie for the body of Edward Sadowski, 21, who clung to an overturned sailboat all night, only to slip under and drown when help was but 15 feet away. The boat overturned near the five-mile crib, Cleveland's city water supply intake, five miles offshore.

he might be forced to take to settle the situation.

In his reply, it was stated, "Daladier made himself guarantor of Poland's position for mutual recourse to free and conciliatory methods."

"Daladier affirmed that no man of feeling could understand why war should break out without at least a new and direct attempt at settlement between Germany and Poland, and he declared himself ready to make all attempts to aid such an attempt."

When Coulondre presented this to Hitler, said the war ministry, "Hitler declared he could not accept the proposals Daladier suggested."

Paris Darkened

For the first time last night Paris was completely darkened, except for a few sentinel lights.

All public telephone pay stations were ordered closed down as the service began to jam.

England's delay in sending a reply to Hitler until today, according to Paris-Midi's Rome correspondent, was a maneuver to give Premier Mussolini time to "work on" Hitler.

Intense diplomatic activities continued throughout the day. Premier Daladier received the Polish ambassador, while Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet saw the British and Dutch envoys and the papal nuncio.

The prefects of all departments were instructed to start immediate payment of subsidies to the families of reservists called to the colors.

Street traffic in Paris was almost at a standstill owing to evacuation of the capital by countless thousands heading the government's warning. The international telephone exchange refused to accept calls to Germany.

Tonight's blackout of Paris will be virtually complete. Authorities ordered all signs and shop lights out, and only emergency street lights and a few necessary cafe lights will be permitted.

Commanded by Sumitoshi Nakao, holder of a Berlin-to-Tokyo flight record, the Japanese-built airship started from Hokkaido island in the North Japanese group Saturday afternoon and spanned the North Pacific and Bering sea in 16 hours.

Weather permitting, they expected to fly from Nome to Whitehorse, Yukon territory, then to Vancouver, B. C., Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Kansas City, New York and Miami.

ago when Hitler seemingly crushed them.

Numerous uncontested signs point to the fact that the majority of people in England and France would rather go ahead and get it over now than wait and endure this nervous strain. As Leon Balby exclaims in his newspaper Le Jour:

"Everywhere in France, people are saying it is better now to finish it once and for all while the chances favor us. Suppose we gave up Danzig, Poland, Rumania and Yugoslavia? We would be obliged in six or twelve months to go to battle with an enemy doubled in strength."

This sentiment is paralleled throughout the British public. At the same time, not only Poland, but Rumania, Turkey, Greece and Portugal are chiming a remarkable chorus against the Bolshevik-Nazi combination, while Franco Spain is visibly withdrawing from the axis, and Japan completely withdrawn.

And observers believe they detect signs of wavering on the part of Mussolini.

To Be Unpopular

The Nazis and Bolsheviks to gether promise to become the most unpopular group the modern world has ever known.

All these facts, it is felt here, are bound to have some effect on Hitler, and there still exists therefore, a faint and remote prospect that he might make a last minute halt.

At this eleventh hour, however, such chances are valued at about one in ten.

Adding bridge games to the long list of activities that may cause the "downfall" of young people, the governor asked:

"Where do all these young people come from that you and I support in our institutions?"

Then he answered: "From your neighborhood and my neighborhood. The criminal may start at the bridge table, and the next thing you know he is after something of larger dimensions."

FLIER KILLED; OTHERS TO TRY FOR RACE MARK

Delbert Bush, Of Kansas City, Plunges During Qualifying Test

TURNER, LEVIER TRY

Engine Sputters, Fails At Cleveland; Craft Falls Into Woods

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28—Despite the fatal crash of a racing plane yesterday, at least two top notch racing pilots planned to take off at Cleveland Municipal airport today in efforts to qualify for events in the National Air races, Sept. 2, 3, and 4.

Involved in the fatal crash was Delbert D. "Don" Bush, 26, of Kansas City, whose rebuilt red Folkerts special went into a spin and crashed from approximately 1,000 feet near the airport yesterday. Bush was instantly killed.

The pilots planning qualifying trials are Col. Roscoe Turner, of Chicago, winner of last year's Thompson Trophy race, and Tony Levier of Los Angeles, winner of the Greve Trophy race last year. Turner planned to qualify his ship for the Thompson, world's fastest closed course race, and Levier hoped to qualify for both the Greve and the Thompson.

The Thompson is for ships of unlimited power, while the Greve race is limited to planes with engines of 549 cubic inches displacement or less.

Crosby Prepares

In addition to Turner and Levier, Harry Crosby of Los Angeles, who crashed in last year's Greve race, indicated he might attempt to qualify today.

To qualify for the Greve a ship must fly two ten-mile laps at a speed of not less than 220 miles per hour. For the Thompson, ships must fly two laps at 240 or more.

Bush, making his first appearance at the National Air Races, had taken off on a test hop when his engine started sputtering. He attempted to climb so that he could cut back toward the field for a landing, but his engine quit entirely and he went into a spin. Witnesses said he pulled out of the spin, only to go out of control again and crash in a woods three-quarters of a mile from the airport.

The plane was rebuilt after it was scratched last year when it developed a wing flutter in test flights.

NEW DEALERS IN CRISIS

The Roosevelt Administration is all hustle and bustle about Europe now, but here is where those most concerned in high official places were when the crisis first broke: here is where those most concerned in high official places were when the crisis first broke:

The President was sunning himself on a cruiser off Canada. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, was golfing at White Sulphur Springs. Postmaster General Jim Farley was receiving the benediction of the Pope in Rome. Frank Murphy, Attorney General, was receiving the smiles of dowagers and debutantes at swank Bailey Beach, Newport, R. I.

Harry Hopkins, Secretary of Commerce, was in Annapolis sitting in the sun by Chesapeake Bay. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, was enjoying the blue waters of the French Riviera. Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, was at his old home in Iowa. Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, was motoring in New York and New England.

Only Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior; Harry Woodring, Secretary of War; and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison were laboring in the vineyard of the Government.

Thus the New Deal, famed champion of the underdog, walked into a crisis that may throw millions of men into battle.

WAR CONFERENCES

The secret conferences being held at the State Department with the heads of different government bureaus deal chiefly with softening the effect of war upon the United States when it breaks in Europe.

One important plan is to protect U. S. stock exchanges from the immediate withdrawal of European cash, which would send stock and bond quotations to record lows. To offset this, stock exchanges will be closed immediately in case of war.

Another important question is the movement of U. S. naval vessels, how many ships to send further into the Pacific, and how many to leave around the Panama Canal and U. S. islands in the Caribbean.

The Navy probably will send

SEMI-FINALS ON AT GOLF COURSE

Gilliland, Friece, Berthold And Sibel Survive; Mrs. Groom Wins

Pickaway Country Club's championship golf tournament was drawing near its conclusion Monday with only four sharpshooters remaining in play.

Two of the four golfers remaining are Circleville men, while the other two are from Chillicothe. Bill Berthold, a Chillicothean, eliminated a fellow-townsman, Jim Hatcher, from play with a 2 up and 1 to go victory. Tom Gilliland, playing steady golf, turned back John Jenkins with a 4 up and 2 to go victory. The third match played during the weekend saw Fred Sibel, of Chillicothe, eliminated F. S. Carruth in a 4 and 3 match.

Bob Friece, of the Circleville club, is the fourth contestant entering the semi-finals. He will meet Gilliland, Sibel and Berthold tangling in the other bracket.

Charles Glitt eliminated A. L. Wilder, 7 and 6, in a class B match; Clayton won from Barnhill 2 and 1 and Doyle defeated Stewart, 2 up in class C competition.

Mrs. Ned Groom went to the finals of the ladies' tournament by defeating Mrs. Ted Hess, Chillicothe, 7 up and 6 to go. She will tangle with the survivor of the Mrs. John Taggart-Mrs. Fred Sibel match.

Uncle Sam's nieces always have been the prettiest girls as a group appearing in the international sports contests. . . . But now England's lovelies threaten to take the world pulchritude title from them. . . . You'll have to look long to find a girl tennis star who can match John Bull's beautiful Kay Stammers or a first flight feminine golfer half as cute as Pam Barton of merry old England.

The College All-Stars will pit a truly League of Nations backfield against the New York football Giants, Aug. 30. . . . As now picked the Stars' first string ball carriers will be Bob McLeod, who's Scotch; Davey O'Brien, who's Irish; Marshall Goldberg, a Jewish lad, and Howie West, of German extraction.

Not until this season was Hank Greenberg ever benched by the Detroit Tigers because he failed to hit. . . . Though there is talk that Greenberg is having eye trouble the Tiger management, we hear, figures Hank is just in one of those slumps that occasionally hit the best of them.

George Washington Case, the fleet base-stealing Senator, comes by his speed naturally. . . . His dad, whose name also was George Washington Case, was a star runner many years ago and was one of the first sprinters to do 100 yards in 10 seconds.

No Defending Champion

For the first time in many years the woman's national golf championship tourney presented no defending title holder. Patty Berg was to play. . . . However, with Miss Pamela Barton of England, the 1936 champ, back in the tour.

Art Lewis, coach of the Cleveland Rams last season when they scored terrific upsets by trouncing the mighty Chicago Bears and the Detroit Lions, is a guy who never gives up. . . . Lewis is trying to stage a comeback with the Rams—as a player.

Purdue this fall will try what but one team has succeeded in doing since 1896. . . . That's lick Notre Dame in the opening game. Texas is the last football outfit to turn the trick on the Irish.

How times fly and how fast the kids grow up. . . . Johnny Berardino, now with the St. Louis Browns, first came to public attention as one of the moppets in the "Our Gang" film comedies.

Dahlgren Likes Shibe Park

If Babe Dahlgren, Lou Gehrig's successor, ever becomes a member of the Philadelphia Athletics he might become a home run star. Eight of Babe's 13 homers this season were socked in Shibe park, Philadelphia.

FLIER KILLED; OTHERS TO TRY FOR RACE MARK

Delbert Bush, Of Kansas City, Plunges During Qualifying Test

TURNER, LEVIER TRY

Engine Sputters, Fails At Cleveland; Craft Falls Into Woods

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28—Despite the fatal crash of a racing plane yesterday, at least two top notch racing pilots planned to take off at Cleveland Municipal airport today in efforts to qualify for events in the National Air races, Sept. 2, 3, and 4.

Involved in the fatal crash was Delbert D. "Don" Bush, 26, of Kansas City, whose rebuilt red Folkerts special went into a spin and crashed from approximately 1,000 feet near the airport yesterday. Bush was instantly killed.

The pilots planning qualifying trials are Col. Roscoe Turner, of Chicago, winner of last year's Thompson Trophy race, and Tony Levier of Los Angeles, winner of the Greve Trophy race last year. Turner planned to qualify his ship for the Thompson, world's fastest closed course race, and Levier hoped to qualify for both the Greve and the Thompson.

The Thompson is for ships of unlimited power, while the Greve race is limited to planes with engines of 549 cubic inches displacement or less.

Crosby Prepares

In addition to Turner and Levier, Harry Crosby of Los Angeles, who crashed in last year's Greve race, indicated he might attempt to qualify today.

To qualify for the Greve a ship must fly two ten-mile laps at a speed of not less than 220 miles per hour. For the Thompson, ships must fly two laps at 240 or more.

Bush, making his first appearance at the National Air Races, had taken off on a test hop when his engine started sputtering. He attempted to climb so that he could cut back toward the field for a landing, but his engine quit entirely and he went into a spin. Witnesses said he pulled out of the spin, only to go out of control again and crash in a woods three-quarters of a mile from the airport.

The plane was rebuilt after it was scratched last year when it developed a wing flutter in test flights.

The Navy probably will send ships immediately to stand guard over Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, the French and British West Indies—not for the purpose of helping the French and British, but to prevent Italian and German bases from being established on any of these islands.

In the event of war the President expects to call Congress within six weeks, or less, to ask for revision of the neutrality law to permit, among other things, the shipment of airplanes to France and Great Britain.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Colonel Louis Johnson, slave-driving Assistant Secretary of War, has done so well his job of planning for the mobilization of industry in wartime that very little work remains. The plan should click into action almost automatically. . . . Whether right or wrong, the British are not particularly worried about submarines this time. They place great confidence in their submarine detectors. Airplane bombardments of merchant shipment will be far more worrisome. . . . Diplomatic dispatches received here report that Hitler is placing chief reliance on the war advice of General Goering, who tells him Britain and France can be brought to their knees by quick air raids. He also advises that the German air force could sink the British merchant fleet. . . .

War Department surveys show that the need of skilled mechanics in the event of war will be the chief problem facing the United States.

The two 37-year-old pros turned in a record team performance to beat fourteen of the nation's leading money players with a total of 19 points and collect first money of $1,150 in the $5,400 tourney. The winners in addition gained $25 apiece by splitting another $200 prize for the best ball

SUNSET OVER BRITAIN

"THE sun never sets on my Empire," said
Alexander the Great in the Fourth Century, B. C. But it did.

"And from one small place Rome has extended its power to that upon it the sun never sets," said the writer Claudian in the reign of the Emperor Theodosius near the end of the Fourth Century, A. D. Dark, indeed, is the Roman Empire now.

"Upon my Empire the sun never sets" said Philip II of Spain shortly before the defeat of the Spanish Armada in the latter half of the Sixteenth Century. And now, poor, broken little Spain!

"His Majesty's Dominion, on which the sun never sets" said John Wilson in 1829 of that far-flung power which we now know as the British Empire.

There were those who believed that after Munich the scepter of the British Empire had become a hollow tube, flimsy, brittle, ready to crack. But there were many, too, who still held hope. A miracle, now, may yet save the world. But nothing, apparently, can save the Empire.
Umbrellas may yet be needed, but parasols may soon be closed.

The time for Great Britain seems to be mid-afternoon.

Over powers and dominions, as over the great globe itself, the sun rises. And the sun sets.

DEMOCRACY

IF democracy is to be saved for this and following generations, it must be done now by those who believe it to be the best way of life, declares Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University. He is qualified to speak by his wide knowledge of foreign affairs.

The problems of this day and hour, he insists, cannot be waved aside by a sweep of the hand. "They cannot be solved by turning to that timorous and cowardly dictum, 'wait and see'." If civilization is to avoid overwhelming damage and perhaps ruin for centuries, there is something to be done which must be done now.

We must find ways and means to solve this problem, he says, and "to save the things we care for most in the world in which we live."

These, some people may reply, are "benevolences". They may want Dr. Butler to be more specific, to get down to brass tacks. There should not be much misunderstanding, though, in the minds of any who read American newspapers. Our press today is printing the facts of world events more fully and accurately than any other press on earth.

The things to be feared are the principles and practices of dictatorship coun-

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

ROOSEVELT SEES REFORM VITAL

WASHINGTON—What Roosevelt thinks of war and its relation to domestic economics was graphically described by him in a recent talk with an old friend.

This friend, a middle-of-the-road
Democrat who helped nominate and elect the President, went in to see him to voice what many conservative Democrats have felt: that the country needs a moratorium on reform. In a heart-to-heart talk, he counseled Roosevelt to "ease up" on Congress and "let things ride quietly for a while."

"People are tired of change," the friend argued. "They want to be let alone."

Roosevelt's reply, briefly summarized, follows:

"I agree with you on the desirability of peace and quiet. No one wants that more than I. I have been fighting this battle for a long time and I can assure you I would like nothing better than to sit back, fold my hands and take it easy."

"But you don't seem to realize that with world conditions as they are, we can't stand still and do nothing. We have got to keep moving forward if we are to save democracy—if we are going to save economic and political liberty."

"You must understand that war in Europe will mean the complete collapse of private economic enterprise there. As a matter of fact, private enterprise has almost gone, already in Germany and Italy, and entirely in Russia. Private economic enterprise is a luxury in this age of supernationalistic powers."

SOVIET REVOLUTION

"The Russian revolution set in motion forces, and influences that are sweeping the world. In the '20s, Italy went Fascist; in the '30s, Germany went Nazi. Suppose all of Europe shifts from a system of free private enterprise to these other systems.
This is certain if there is a war, and it may happen anyway."

"The United States could not escape the effects of such a change, either politically, socially or economically. We would be confronted with a titanic war of ideas. We have millions of dispossessed, jobless and hopeless people. They would be easy prey to the illusions and promises of these nationalistic systems. Look what happened in Italy and Germany."

"We have to put our house in order to meet the attack of these foreign systems.
We have got to give our people a stake in our system of free economic enterprise so they will be willing to defend it and fight for it. We must prepare to meet the great test that is approaching."

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

ALF M. LANDON isn't without his fans for the 1940 Republican presidential nomination. They say he's the best possibility on the list.
They advance some pretty paltry substantive arguments, too. For one thing, he doesn't have to be such a hum-dinger to outclass the rest of the G.O.P.'s possibilities.
That's the trouble with the Republicans. They think they'll stand a tolerably good chance of winning next year, if they can hit on a corking strong head of their ticket.
But such a candidate doesn't seem to be readily available.

Thomas E. Dewey continues to lead in all the straw polls. Yet he leads in even the straw polls by a steadily dwindling succession of majorities. It's complained that he hasn't had a bit of executive experience. He also is referred to as having odds of "sex appeal" and as a "glamor boy." These compliments aren't intended to be complimentary and they're not, either.
Their purpose is to make Dewey ridiculous, if it can be done—just as, on the Democratic side, Paul V. McNutt's well-wishers aren't the ones who dwell on the Hoo-sier's good looks. "Oh, you beautiful doll!" is the slogan that the anti-McNuttites are trying to connect Paul with. A reputation for sex appeal and glamor is no better calculated to benefit a presidential candidate than a reputation for "beautiful dollishness" is.

Such so-called compliments are paid out of pure meanness.

VANDENBERG, et al
Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg rates, in straw votes, next to Dewey.

Vandenberg is middling good, but only "middling." Republican politicians speak of him as rather "snoopy."

The objection to Senator Robert
A. Taft is that he hasn't been in public life long enough; that he hasn't developed much ginger, anyway. About all he's given credit for is ancestry.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio is secondary to Taft.

Gov. Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania no longer is mentioned.
Senator Styles Bridges is waging a sure-enough pre-convention campaign, but it doesn't "take" appreciably. Maybe Styles hasn't the "goods," or maybe it's because his geography (New Hampshire) is all wrong.

Renominating ex-President Herbert Hoover is suggested, but that hint's a "dud" likewise.

Now Landon no longer is an unknown.

Outside Kansas practically nobody had heard of him until he was presidentially nominated, and it was too late then to advertise him nationally.

He was bound to lose that year, regardless.

He was a dandy loser, though.
No sooner was he licked than he announced himself in co-operation with the Roosevelt administration for the common good.

Much to the administration's credit, he was invited to join in Pan-American negotiations and promptly accepted. "Yankee politics," he said, "end at the water's edge."

By his attitude he probably had more to do with the consolidation of inter-American relations than any other single individual.

LOSERS AND LOSERS
Al Smith's misfortune was that he was a poor loser.

I don't worry that he was sore, but he needn't have been so obvious about it.

As it is, he's manager of the Empire State building in New York City, with no more chance than a rabbit of ever being a political candidate for anything again.
Whereas Alf Landon isn't an impossibility for another nomination as president.

And with some slight prospect of being elected,

Filling School Lunch Baskets

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MANY a beginning parent will be faced for the first time this year with the task of preparing a school lunch. The school may have a good cafeteria, with food at reasonable prices, but sometimes there is doubt whether sister knows just what is best to pick out and brother is known to shirk on his fruit and vegetables, so mother will do the nutrition planning herself.

For convenience, get salt, pepper and sugar shakers, paper napkins, spoons and paper containers (much safer than glass containers), and a vacuum bottle, of course.

Give enough fruit. The young body needs lots of energy. Provide some quick energy in the form of candy or sweets and reduce the temptation to gorge on cheap candy at the little shops.

Protein, vegetables, milk, bread and fruits, and sweets—these are the staple requirements.
For some fall lunches, the following are suggested:

Egg sandwiches on entire wheat bread; raspberry jam sandwich on white bread; apple and late salad, lettuce separate; celery hearts;
bottle of milk in vacuum bottle;
grapes; spice cakes; fudge.

Baked beans with tiny bit of chili sauce or horseradish on entire wheat bread; grated yellow cheese sandwich on white bread; fresh tomato; bottle milk in vacuum bottle;

fresh peach; fig cookies; butter-scotch.

Cream cheese and orange honey on white bread; meat loaf on entire wheat bread; carrot ball and beet ball salad, lettuce and dressing separate; bottle of milk in vacuum bottle; fresh pear; walnut bars; mints.

Tuna fish on white bread; sliced ham on entire wheat bread; potato salad, lettuce separate; raw carrot strips; bottle of milk in vacuum bottle; plums; devil's food cake; fruit roll.

Pressed beef on entire wheat bread; crushed pineapple and sliced banana on nut bread; apple and celery salad, lettuce separate; chocolate milk in vacuum bottle; gingerbread; marshmallows.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Miss G. F.: "Every morning without fail I get a coughing spell that lasts about five minutes. It starts from an itchy feeling in my throat."

Answer: A careful examination of the lungs, including an x-ray, is in order. Also careful examination of the nose. The symptom you describe is more characteristic of a nasal or sinus infection than anything else.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

PITY THE POOR LEADER

HAVING THE opportunity to make the opening lead against a contract is supposed to be one advantage possessed by the defenders to offset that held by the declarer in selecting the declaration.
In having had the opportunity to select the declaration for the times, however, the leader should be considered an object of pity because he has to make a blind guess, with a good chance that whatever he does may be the very thing which will make the contract.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

MEN WHO have been reared in the outdoors see many things that a city man misses.

Does a bird jump from one twig to another? The city man won't notice, but the country man can tell you that it was a sparrow with a drooping left wing. Has a "bug" walked across the sand in the trail? The city man won't know, but the outdoor man saw the tracks, knew that a horned lizard made them. Are rocks stacked and piled around fantastically as if nature had gone completely crazy on some prehistoric date? Surely, but one fist-sized rock stacked on another marks a trail or a warning to the rancher, whereas his duds guest won't observe it at all.

Young Shot Rogers wasn't meditating on such things as that, but he was instinctively alert now for the slightest untoward thing. He and his riders moved up Miners' arroyo three abreast, horses at a slow walk. Rifles were held in readiness. Shot's keen eyes moved constantly, attentively, right and left and back again.

CRACK! CRACK-CRACK!
He had fired once, then twice more, before his fellows quit. realized it.

Ready now to shoot again, he gazed intently at a spot off to the right. "Whoa—ho—o—boy, ho—o—o—he murmured soothingly to his horse. "Heads up, men. He's in the rocks yonder, 50 yards or so. It's a Mexican, all right. I caught a glimpse of his red shirt. If he shoots or moves again, we'll ride him down."

They stared intently a few seconds. Nothing moved.

"Come out of it, hombre!" Shot called loudly. "Manos arriba!"

"Shot! . . . Mr. Rogers!"

The men were dumbfounded.
Shot himself became statuesque in color and silence, striving to verify what his ears told him.

"W—who is it?" he demanded then, crisply.

"Glo—ree, stop shooting at me!"
the voice answered, from the rocks.
It was a high voice, undeniably a woman's. "I'm just about scared cray!"

"My lord! My lord!" breathed Shot, still incredulous. "Men, it's—it's—oh, lordy!"

Alone he rode out then.
His ten followers, amazed, could only watch while he rode to Lorena and bade her come out of hiding.
He was almost incoherent in demanding to know if she was hurt, if his bullets had struck her. And she was equally excited in answering him.

"My hair, Shot! My hair! It went through my h-h-hair, see? It tore off my handkerchief and—look!"

Lorena's brown curls had been combed in the current "piled up" mode, literally stacked above her forehead in the manner she liked because it gave her added height.
Over them this morning she had tied a red silken square, peasant fashion, to keep the hair under control.

Strong Mr. Shot Rogers was trembling when he dismounted.
Trembling even though his lips were colorless and tight and the knuckles of his hand showed white.

For a long time he said nothing further. He just stared at Lorena, and swallowed, and glanced at his followers, and then looked back at her as she stood before him and showed him where his bullets had gone.

"I—I might have killed you!"
he whispered, at last.

"All right, Shot? You want us there?" one of the older men called out to him.

He looked at them and shook his head. "No," he called back. "It's just—oh, my god, men, don't never shoot without being sure! Never!
Lorena, what in the world—"

"I had to come, Shot! There'll be trouble. Men hurt. Death and—surfacing. You might be badly wounded! I—I brought some things for first aid. Bandages, sheets I can tear up. And I could—I could—well, I just had to come! I wanted to!"

She was crying then, quite beyond the realm of self-control.

Her lower lip tucked in slightly in the manner characteristic of her, quivering in her sobs, and her eyes looked at him in that trusting, worshipful, but thoroughly frightened expression he had seen in fawns or a young buck that he had wounded, once on the Tonto range.

"It's no good," said he, sensibly,
"to cry. You—well, you're here.
Now I say for you to get back in hiding safe somewhere if you won't go on back home. I ought to take and send two men with you, I guess. We'd still have nine and—
"No!"

"Huh? You don't know yet
what you're messing into out here, Lorena. You are a stranger in this country. And a girl! My lordy, don't you understand? Can't you understand that Luis Escobar is no story book somebody? Can't you understand that people have been killed dead? Didn't you see those coffins at Blanco? See the rewards offered? Didn't you see the Mexicans we had to kill? Why, just this morning we came across the body of another one, all stripped of its flesh and lying there half skeleton in its own bloody horror, with buzzards all around. Don't you realize that—"

"No! Yes! I mean, of course I u—understand all that, Shot! Of course I do! I am grown. I am not s-stupid!"

"Then what are you doing out here? You just want to be a nurse?
Why, Lorena, men can do—"

"No. No, Shot."
"Then why?"

He was angry with her and he showed it now. He asked that and grasped her arm in his vehemence, hurting her more than he knew.

But she didn't answer. She just shook her head slowly and wiped off her tears. And he saw that same depth in her eyes again and it confused him.

"My lordy, Lorena!" he murmured in anger now, turning away.

Nor did he speak to her again there. He walked back to his horsemen, leading his own mount, and gravely ordered them to conceal their horses among the shrubs of Miners' arroyo, then scatter about the tops of surrounding hills. If and when the first sign of Escobar's raiders should be seen, the man who spotted it should give a signal.
All would come to their horses, save Shot. He would remain an outpost, and signal with his handkerchief when they were to ride out for the attack. They would lead out his own horse and he would take it when they came and he would ordered one of his men to go back to Lorena and tell her to lay low where she was.

Lorena did not question the command.

She would have preferred it differently. She thought she might do some active scout service of her own if given the chance. There would be no grave danger if she kept out of range when the thieves did come—if they did. But she contented herself to wait.

The men moved out from her into the low-lying hills that extended eastward, surrounding and dotting the valley that constitutes this east range of the vast Phantom acres. Nobody could say, she knew, from just what direction—up just what canyon or passage—any raiders might come. But out there lay the fattest, most tempting cattle. In two hours Escobar's vaqueros could drive off enough to feed a regiment for days; and Luis Escobar's growing army, of course, needed food.

Lorena had long wearisome hours to think of these things. At noon nothing had happened. By mid-afternoon she was cramped and inef-fectually bored, and when nightfall was nearing again she realized that nothing was likely to happen, after all.

Then it was she looked back down Miners' arroyo toward home and saw Jerry Dale coming.

SUNSET OVER BRITAIN

"THE sun never sets on my Empire," said Alexander the Great in the Fourth Century, B. C. But it did.

"And from one small place Rome has extended its power to that upon it the sun never sets," said the writer Claudian in the reign of the Emperor Theodosius near the end of the Fourth Century, A. D. Dark, indeed, is the Roman Empire now.

"Upon my Empire the sun never sets" said Philip II of Spain shortly before the defeat of the Spanish Armada in the latter half of the Sixteenth Century. And now, poor, broken little Spain!

"His Majesty's Dominion, on which the sun never sets" said John Wilson in 1829 of that far-flung power which we now know as the British Empire.

There were those who believed that after Munich the scepter of the British Empire had become a hollow tube, flimsy, brittle, ready to crack. But there were many, too, who still held hope. A miracle, now, may yet save the world. But nothing, apparently, can save the Empire. Umbrellas may yet be needed, but parasols may soon be closed.

The time for Great Britain seems to be mid-afternoon.

Over powers and dominions, as over the great globe itself, the sun rises. And the sun sets.

IF democracy is to be saved for this and following generations, it must be done now by those who believe it to be the best way of life, declares Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University. He is qualified to speak by his wide knowledge of foreign affairs.

The problems of this day and hour, he insists, cannot be waved aside by a sweep of the hand. "They cannot be solved by turning to that timorous and cowardly dictum, 'wait and see'. If civilization is to avoid overwhelming damage and perhaps ruin for centuries, there is something to be done which must be done now."

We must find ways and means to solve this problem, he says, and "to save the things we care for most in the world in which we live."

These, some people may reply, are "beneralities". They may want Dr. Butler to be more specific, to get down to brass tacks". There should not be much misunderstanding, though, in the minds of any who read American newspapers. Our press today is printing the facts of world events more fully and accurately than any other press on earth.

ROOSEVELT SEES REFORM VITAL

WASHINGTON—What Roosevelt thinks of war and its relation to domestic economics was graphically described by him in a recent talk with an old friend.

This friend, a middle-of-the-road Democrat who helped nominate and elect the President, went in to see him to voice what many conservative Democrats have felt: that the country needs a moratorium on reform. In a heart-to-heart talk, he counseled Roosevelt to "ease up" on Congress and "let things ride quietly for a while."

"People are tired of change," the friend argued. "They want to be let alone."

Roosevelt's reply, briefly summarized, follows:

"I agree with you on the desirability of peace and quiet. No one wants that more than I. I have been fighting this battle for a long time and I can assure you I would like nothing better than to sit back, fold my hands and take it easy."

"But you don't seem to realize that with world conditions as they are, we can't stand still and do nothing. We have got to keep moving forward if we are to save democracy—if we are going to save economic and political liberty."

"You must understand that war in Europe will mean the complete collapse of private economic enterprise there. As a matter of fact, private enterprise has almost gone, already in Germany and Italy, and entirely in Russia. Private economic enterprise is a luxury in this age of super-nationalistic powers."

SOVIET REVOLUTION

"The Russian revolution set in motion forces, and influences that are sweeping the world. In the '20s, Italy went Fascist; in the '30s, Germany went Nazi. Suppose all of Europe shifts from a system of free private enterprise to these other systems. This is certain if there is a war, and it may happen anyway."

"The United States could not escape the effects of such a change, either politically, socially or economically. We would be confronted with a titanic war of ideas. We have millions of dispossessed, jobless and hopeless people. They would be easy prey to the illusions and promises of these nationalistic systems. Look what happened in Italy and Germany."

"We have to put our house in order to meet the attack of these foreign systems. We have got to give our people a stake in our system of free economic enterprise so they will be willing to defend it and fight for it. We must prepare to meet the great test that is approaching."

"That is why we can't sit down and fold our hands and take things easy. To do that is to invite certain destruction of the liberties we cherish. If we want to preserve Americanism as we know it and want it, we have got to take protective

CRACK! CRACK! CRACK!
He had fired once, then twice more, before his fellows quit: realized it.

Ready now to shoot again, he gazed intently at a spot off to the right. "Whoa—ho-o-o, boy, ho-o-o!" he murmured soothingly to his horse. "Heads up, men. He's in the rocks yonder, 60 yards or so. It's a Mexican, all right. I caught a glimpse of his red shirt. If he shoots or moves again, we'll ride him down."

They stared intently a few seconds. Nothing moved.

"Come out of it, hombre!" Shot called loudly. "Manos arriba!"

"Shott! . . . Mr. Rogers!"

The men were dumbfounded. Shot himself became statuesque in color and silence, striving to verify what his ears told him.

"Who is it?" he demanded then, crisply.

"Glo-ree, stop shooting at me!" the voice answered, from the rocks. It was a high voice, undeniably a woman's. "I'm just about scared gray!"

"My lord! My lord!" breathed Shot, still incredulous. "Men, it's—it's—oh, lordy!"

Alone he rode out then.

His ten followers, amazed, could only watch while he rode to Lorena and bade her come out of hiding. He was almost incoherent in demanding to know if she was hurt. If his bullets had struck her, she was equally excited in answering him.

"M-my hair, Shot! My hair! It went through my h-h-hair, see? It tore off my handkerchief and—look!"

Lorena's brown curls had been combed in the current "piled up" mode, literally stacked above her forehead in the manner she liked because it gave her added height. Over them this morning she had tied a red silken square, peasant fashion, to keep the hair under control.

Strong Mr. Shot Rogers was trembling when he dismounted. Trembling even though his lips were colorless and tight and the knuckles of his hand showed white.

For a long time he said nothing further. He just stared at Lorena, and swallowed, and glanced at his followers, and then looked back at her as she stood before him and showed him where his bullets had gone.

"It—I might have killed you!" he whispered, at last.

"All right, Shot? You want us there?" one of the older men called out to him.

He looked at them and shook his head. "No," he called back. "It's just—oh, my god, men, don't never shoot without being sure! Never! Lorena, what in the world—"

"I had to come, Shot! There'll be trouble. Men hurt. Death and—suffering. You might be badly wounded! I—I brought some things for first aid. Bandages, sheets I can tear up. And I could—I could—well, I just had to come! I wanted to!"

She was crying then, quite beyond the realm of self-control.

Her lower lip tucked in slightly in the manner characteristic of her, quivering in her sobs, and her eyes looked at him in that trusting, worshipful, but thoroughly frightened expression he had seen in fawns or a young buck that he had wounded, once on the Tonto range.

"It's no good," said he, sensibly, "to cry. You well, you're here. Now I say for you to get back in hiding safe somewhere if you won't go on back home. I ought to take and send two men with you, I guess. We'd still have nine and—"

"No!"

"Huh? You don't know yet what you're messing into out here, Lorena. You are a stranger in this country. And a girl! My lordy, don't you understand? Can't you understand that Luis Escobar is no story book somebody? Can't you understand that people have been killed dead? Didn't you see those coffins at Blanco? See the rewards offered? Didn't you see the Mexicans we had to kill? Why, just this morning we came across the body of another one, all stripped of its flesh and lying there half a skeleton in its own bloody horror, with buzzards all around. Don't you realize that—"

"No! Yes! I mean, of course I understand all that, Shot! Of course I do! I am grown. I am not a-stupid!"

"Then what are you doing out here? You just want to be a nurse? Why, Lorena, men can do—"

"No. No, Shot."

"Then why?"

He was angry with her and he showed it now. He asked that and grasped her arm in his vehemence, hurting her more than he knew.

But she didn't answer. She just shook her head slowly and wiped off her tears. And he saw that same depth in her eyes again and it confused him.

"My lordy, Lorena!" he murmured in anger now, turning away.

Nor did he speak to her again there. He walked back to his horsemen, leading his own mount, and gravely ordered them to conceal their horses among the shrubs of Miners' arroyo, then scatter him about the tops of surrounding hills. If and when the first sign of Escobar's raiders should be seen, the man who spotted it should give a signal. All would come to their horses, save Shot. He would remain an outpost, and signal with his handkerchief when they were to ride out for the attack. They would lead out his own horse and she would take it when they came near him. He ordered one of his men to go back to Lorena and tell her to lay low where she was.

Lorena did not question the command.

She would have preferred it differently. She thought she might do some active scout service of her own if given the chance. There would be no grave danger if she kept out of range when the thieves did come—if they did. But she contented herself to wait.

The men moved out from her into the low-lying hills that extended eastward, surrounding and dotting the valley that constitutes this east range of the vast Phantom acreage. Nobody could say, she knew, from just what direction—up just what canyon or passage—any raiders might come. But out there lay the fattest, most tempting cattle. In two hours Escobar's vaqueros could drive off enough to feed a regiment for days; and Luis Escobar's growing army, of course, needed food.

Lorena had long wearisome hours to think of these things. At noon nothing had happened. By mid-afternoon she was cramped and inexpressibly bored, and when nightfall was nearing again she realized that nothing was likely to happen, after all.

Then it was she looked back down Miners' arroyo toward home and saw Jerry Dale coming.

World At A Glance

—By— Charles F. Stewart

ALF M. LANDON isn't without his fans for the 1940 Republican presidential nomination. They say he's the best possibility on the list. They advance some pretty plausible sounding arguments, too. For one thing, he doesn't have to be such a hum-dinger to outclass the rest of the G.O.P.'s possibilities. That's the trouble with the Republicans. They think they'll stand a tolerably good chance of winning next year, if they can hit on a corking strong head of their ticket. But such a candidate doesn't seem to be readily available.

Thomas E. Dewey continues to lead in all the straw polls. Yet he leads in even the straw polls by a steadily dwindling succession of majorities. It's complained that he hasn't had a bit of executive experience. He also is referred to as having odds of "sex appeal" and as a "glamor boy." These compliments aren't intended to be complimentary and they're not, either. Their purpose is to make Dewey ridiculous, if it can be done—just as, on the Democratic side, Paul V. McNutt's well-wishers aren't the ones who dwell on the Hoosier's good looks. "Oh, you beautiful doll!" is the slogan that the anti-McNuttites are trying to connect Paul with. A reputation for sex appeal and glamor is no better calculated to benefit a presidential candidate than a reputation for "beautiful dollishness" is. Such so-called compliments are paid out of pure meanness.

VANDENBERG, et al
Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg rates, in straw votes, next to Dewey.

Vandenberg is middling good, but only "middling." Republican politicians speak of him as rather "snopworn."

The objection to Senator Robert A. Taft is that he hasn't been in public life long enough; that he hasn't developed much ginger, anyway. About all he's given credit for is ancestry.

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio is secondary to Taft.

Gov. Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania no longer is mentioned.

Senator Styles Bridges is waging a sure-enough pre-convention campaign, but it doesn't "take" appreciably. Maybe Styles hasn't the "goods," or maybe it's because his geography (New Hampshire) is all wrong.

Renominating ex-President Herbert Hoover is suggested, but that hint's a "dud" likewise.

Now a boom's process of inflation for Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Republican leader in the house of representatives. That's in its incipency. Martin's slightly promising; nobody can tell yet. Incidentally, Martin's geography (Massachusetts) isn't much of an improvement on Bridges'.

NO LONGER AN UNKNOWN
Now Landon no longer is an unknown.

Outside Kansas practically nobody had heard of him until he was presidentially nominated, and it was too late then to advertise him nationally.

He was bound to lose that year, regardless.

He was a dandy loser, though.

No sooner was he licked than he announced himself in co-operation with the Roosevelt administration for the common good.

Much to the administration's credit, he was invited to join in Pan-American negotiations and promptly accepted. "Yankee politics," he said, "end at the water's edge."

By his attitude he probably had more to do with the consolidation of inter-American relations than any other single individual.

LOSERS AND LOSERS
Al Smith's misfortune was that he was a poor loser.

I don't worry that he was sore, but he needn't have been so obvious about it.

As it is, he's manager of the Empire State building in New York City, with no more chance than a rabbit of ever being a political candidate for anything again.

Whereas Alf Landon isn't an impossibility for another nomination as president.

And with some slight prospect of being elected,

Practical Fall Suit

HERE'S one of those town-or-country suits which get better-looking every Autumn, and which most of us find so practical from the moment cool weather begins. The college girl will love it, but no more than the business woman who wants dash at luncheon as well as comfort in the office. The fabric is dark brown wool, plaided in dull blue and rust and piped in brown kidskin. The cummerbund is also kidskin and so are the high-cut shoes, as sleek a tie-up as can be imagined. Fitting into the casual picture, the hat is made of strips of felt stitched together and correctly tailored by a man's hatter.

A frequent request from readers is: "What shall I plant to replace poplar trees which are dying?" The Lombardy poplar was at one time one of our most popular ornamental trees, due to its columnar form. But it is a short-lived tree, and the same effect in plantings can be obtained by using the larch or Ginkgo trees.

Figure 1 in the accompanying Garden-Graph shows the foliage of the larch. The larches are deciduous conifers (bearing cones) and are exceedingly attractive in the Spring, when they put forth soft pale green shoots. Larches can be planted in large masses for a screen or windbreak, or as single specimens, and can also be used as accent points because of their stately form.

Figure 2 shows the foliage of the Ginkgo Maidenhair tree. The Ginkgo is exceedingly picturesque and the effect of its upright branches suggests the Lombardy poplar. The leaves of the Ginkgo tree turn a lovely golden yellow in the Autumn. It is a fine lawn tree and will flourish in congested city streets. It grows well when planted singly or in small groups.

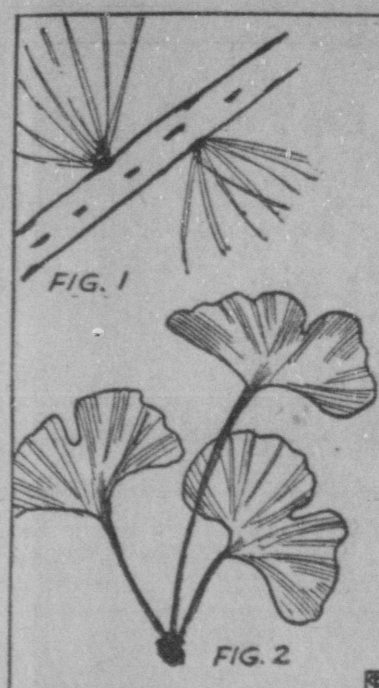

GARDEN HINTS

Keep the hollyhocks going by robbing them of their seed pods, removing each one as soon as it is formed. In this way the plant continues to create blooms the entire season. When the top of the stalk is reached flowers begin to come on the lower leaf axils, smaller but still colorful.

If your rock garden has become overgrown this year it should be thinned out after blooming ends, so that the weaker plants will not be smothered.

If crab grass is prevalent in the lawn it should be attacked by raking it upright and mowing, with a grass catcher on the mower.

The soil should be packed firmly about the roots of trees and shrubs that are newly planted. If the trees are exposed to string winds it is best to stake them.

Practical Fall Suit

HERE'S one of those town-or-country suits which get better-looking every Autumn, and which most of us find so practical from the moment cold weather begins. The college girl will love it, but no more than the business woman who wants dash at luncheon as well as comfort in the office. The fabric is dark brown wool, plaided in dull blue and rust and piped in brown kidskin. The cummerbund is also kidskin and so are the high-cut shoes, as sleek a tie-up as can be imagined. Fitting into the casual picture, the hat is made of strips of felt stitched together and correctly tailored by a man's hatter.

A frequent request from readers is: "What shall I plant to replace poplar trees which are dying?" The Lombardy poplar was at one time one of our most popular ornamental trees, due to its columnar form. But it is a short-lived tree, and the same effect in plantings can be obtained by using the larch or Ginkgo trees.

Figure 1 in the accompanying Garden-Graph shows the foliage of the larch. The larches are deciduous conifers (bearing cones) and are exceedingly attractive in the Spring, when they put forth soft pale green shoots. Larches can be planted in large masses for a screen or windbreak, or as single specimens, and can also be used as accent points because of their stately form.

Figure 2 shows the foliage of the Ginkgo Maidenhair tree. The Ginkgo is exceedingly picturesque and the effect of its upright branches suggests the Lombardy poplar. The leaves of the Ginkgo tree turn a lovely golden yellow in the Autumn. It is a fine lawn tree and will flourish in congested city streets. It grows well when planted singly or in small groups.

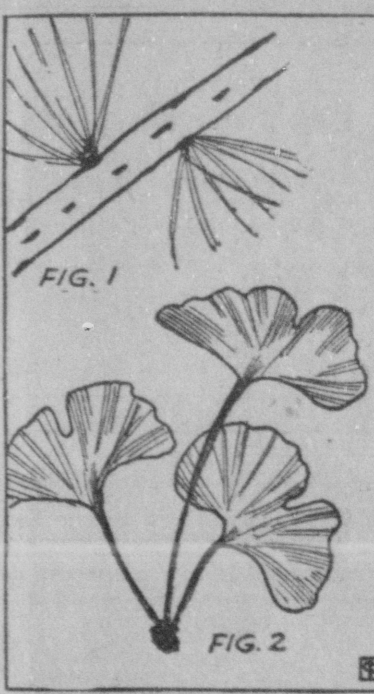

GARDEN HINTS

Keep the hollyhocks going by robbing them of their seed pods, removing each one as soon as it is formed. In this way the plant continues to create blooms the entire season. When the top of the stalk is reached flowers begin to come on the lower leaf axils, smaller but still colorful.

If your rock garden has become overgrown this year it should be thinned out after blooming ends, so that the weaker plants will not be smothered.

If crab grass is prevalent in the lawn it should be attacked by raking it upright and mowing, with a grass catcher on the mower.

The soil should be packed firmly about the roots of trees and shrubs that are newly planted. If the trees are exposed to string winds it is best to stake them.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 28 —The Columbus Red Birds today to move in on Minneapolis today for a series opener as they left Milwaukee after splitting a double-header with the Brewers.

The Birds won the first game 6 to 5. Columbus clinched the game in the sixth inning, when Tom Winsett slammed one into the center field bleachers with Bobby Sturgeon on base. The Birds scored four in the fourth when Al Fisher doubled with the bases loaded, then moved in on Sturgeon's sacrifice.

Paul Dean, former St. Louis Cardinal hurler, pitched the seven-inning nightcap for the Ohio team. He allowed nine hits as the Brewers won 6 to 1.

At Kansas City the Blues had their American association lead cut to two games when they split a double-header with the Toledo Mud Hens. Toledo took the first game 8 to 3, and the leaders came back to win the second 9 to 1.

St. Paul boosted its winning streak to five games as they won the opener of a twin bill from Indianapolis 8 to 3. However, the Indians took the nightcap 7 to 3. The Saints are battling for a place in the association playoffs.

The Minneapolis Millers gained a full game on the Blues when they took two games of a double-header from Louisville 5 to 1 and 3 to 2.

New York May Clinch Victory In Next Week

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 — Beating down the home stretch toward their fourth straight American league pennant, the New York Yankees currently are displaying some of the greatest baseball they've ever shown. As a result they are 13 games ahead of the second place Boston Red Sox today, with only 34 games remaining on the schedule. They will just about have their pennant clinched when they return to the East, on Sept. 2.

Their power in the stretch run is revealed by their 134 home runs in their 120 games to date, with 32 of the blows having been struck in their last 16 games. Three were produced yesterday, by Bill Dickey, Frankie Crosetti and Red Rolfe, as the Yanks annihilated the Detroit Tigers, 13 to 3. It was Red Ruffing's 20th pitching victory.

The triumph increased their lead by a game and a half as the Red Sox dropped two to the Cleveland Indians, Bob Feller hurling a four-hit shutout in the opener and the Indians then taking the nightcap, 5 to 3.

Over in the National league, the Cincinnati Reds increased their lead to five games by defeating the New York Giants, 7 to 2, while the second place St. Louis Cardinals were losing to the Boston Bees, 10 to 4, then winning, 6 to 5.

In other National league contests, the Philadelphia Phillies assaulted their disheartened followers by downing the Chicago Cubs twice, 4 to 3 and 3 to 2, and the Brooklyn Dodgers beat Pittsburgh, 3 to 2, then lost, 9-5.

In remaining American league games, the Washington Senators trimmed the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 7 and 4 to 3, the latter game going 11 innings, while Bill Beckman hurled the Philadelphia Athletics to a seven-hit 2 to 0 shutout over the Chicago White Sox.

CINCINNATI WINS OVER NEW YORK TO BOOST LEAD

Derringer In Form; Cards Divide; Goodman Clouts Ball For Redlegs

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 — Apparently back in their pace-setting stride once more, the Cincinnati Reds were to meet the New York Giants today in the second game of a series.

The Reds increased their National league lead to five full games by trouncing the Giants 7 to 2 in the first tilt as the second-place St. Louis Cardinals split a double-header with the Boston Bees.

Big Paul Derringer was on the mound for Cincinnati. He allowed the Giants six hits in winning his 17th game of the season.

Carl Hubbell had held the league leaders scoreless for four innings. In the fifth, Harry Craft started the Reds' barrage with a long homer inside the Polo Grounds. When the inning was over, Cincinnati had six runs.

Craft was followed by Billy Myers and Derringer, who singled. Bill Werber hit a grounder, which was fumbled by Burgess Whitehead. Eddie Joost singled and Ival Goodman stepped into a homer that brought in three runs.

The Giants got their first run in the third inning when Tom Hafey walked, Hubbell sacrificed and Joe Moore singled. Hafey scored the other tally in the fifth with a homer.

Goodman was the star of the day. He drove in the other Cincinnati run in the seventh with a single. His fielding was perfect, and he was cheered wildly when he spiked Zeke Bonura's foul deep in the right field corner in the second inning.

CALVARY EVANGELICAL PASTOR ASSIGNED TO CHARGE IN ASHLAND

W. D. RAMSEY TO REPLACE DAVIS IN CIRCLEVILLE

Huron Man To Remove His Family This Week; Swisher Leaves Stoutsville

CAMPMEETING IS ENDED

Plans Made For Improvement At Mt. Of Praise Before Next Year

The Rev. S. S. Davis, who has been pastor of Calvary Evangelical church in Circleville for the last three years, was assigned to Calvary church, Ashland, Sunday, at the Ohio conference of the Evangelical church held in Miller Avenue church, Columbus.

The Rev. Mr. Davis will be succeeded by the Rev. W. D. Ramsey, who has been pastor of the church in Huron. The Rev. Mr. Ramsey is married. He will begin to move his family to Circleville on Wednesday. No services will be held next Sunday. The pastors are granted a vacation on the first Sunday following the annual conference.

The Rev. Mr. Davis came to Circleville after the Rev. Ellis Radebaugh was assigned to the church at Greenburg. The Rev. Mr. Radebaugh was reassigned to the Greenburg church.

Swisher to Cleveland
The Rev. O. R. Swisher of the Stoutsville church, was assigned to Mt. Pleasant church at Cleveland. New pastor of the Stoutsville church is the Rev. Harold Dutt, formerly of Mt. Pleasant church, Cleveland.

The Rev. C. L. Kerns was returned to Mansfield and the Rev. C. H. Kerns was returned to Lima. Both are well known in Circleville. They are cousins of A. H. Morris, Circleville township.

Huge Throng At Camp Conclusion

One of the largest crowds in the history of the Mount of Praise, campmeeting grounds of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union of Ohio on E. Ohio street, attended the closing sessions of the annual camp held Sunday.

Officials estimated the crowd between 12,000 and 15,000 persons for the various services throughout the day. They estimated 2,000 cars were parked on the campgrounds and in the vicinity of the camp. The crowds were larger than those of the previous Sunday when it was believed about 12,000 persons attended the sessions.

About $5,200 in cash and pledges was given Saturday for missionary work by the various churches. Saturday was observed as Missionary Day with special service during the afternoon. Officials said offerings at the services Sunday totalled about $800.

To Build Restaurant

Camp officials hope to erect a new restaurant, dining hall and kitchen during the next year. Although plans are not definite, officials are considering having the kitchen and dining room on a basement floor with a restaurant on the first floor. The present restaurant and dining hall are inadequate for the crowds attending the campmeeting.

Crews of workers were busy Monday preparing to close up the various buildings until next year's session.

FAIR ATTRACTS RECORD CROWD

58,883 Jam Into Grounds To Set High Mark For Sunday Attendance

COLUMBUS, Aug. 28—The Ohio State Fair went into its third day today as an early check-up of admissions indicated an attendance record would be set this year.

A crowd of 57,883 visited the grounds yesterday, exceeding the count for visitors on the same day last year by 15,000.

All available parking space was filled an hour before noon Sunday, and visitors were forced to leave their cars on side streets near the grounds.

The fair proper was to begin today with judging of horses and cattle. Other features scheduled were a milkmaids' contest, harness racing and a horse show.

Fair officials announced they were enforcing the "no-pass" rule rigidly. In other years thousands of passes were issued throughout the state.

The Pickaway county 4-H club band will hold a practice at the Farm Bureau home at 8 p. m. Monday in preparation for their appearance at the Ohio State Fair on Thursday.

Judging of 4-H club exhibits at the fair was under way Monday. C. E. Blakeslee, assistant Pickaway county agent, was present to assist Pickaway county members with their exhibits.

FORMER COUNTY MAN HUNTED ON MONEY CHARGES

Paul M. Lininger, 24, former resident of the New Holland community, is being sought by Fayette county authorities on a complaint charging embezzlement. Lininger is charged with taking upward of $2,000 from the Weber C. French Manufacturing Co., of Washington C. H., producers of hog feeding equipment.

The charges were filed in Bloomington, Ill., and warrant issued out of the court there, but officers over a wide area have been asked to keep a lookout for Lininger. French said that while Lininger is charged with embezzling some $2,000 of the company's funds, that the amount would probably run more than that.

Lininger, former school teacher, was Illinois state manager for the French Manufacturing Co. Efforts made to locate Lininger brought the information, it was stated by French, that Lininger had collected a considerable sum of money belonging to the company and driven to Chicago, where he disposed of his automobile, and disappeared.

The last heard from him, according to French, was on August 13, at Chicago.

Word reaching Washington C. H. is that Lininger took his wife to the home of her sister at Marysville, and left her there.

He was formerly engaged in teaching school in Clinton county.

Uncle Sam Raps Four-Power Talk

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—The United States government looks with disfavor on a four-power conference to settle the Polish-German controversy, it was learned today in official quarters.

Dispatches from Europe reported that Premier Mussolini of Italy had submitted an eleventh hour compromise proposal to the British cabinet containing the suggestion for a four-power conference.

This conference would be between Italy, Germany, France, and Great Britain and its deliberations would at least temporarily reach some peaceful solution concerning the fate of Poland.

While American state department spokesmen insisted they had received no official word of the Mussolini plan, the opinion expressed in diplomatic circles is that the United States government feels that Poland should have a seat at any council that debates its future.

At the same time, an official of the Polish embassy expressed the belief that his country would never accede to Mussolini's reported conference proposal unless Poland is given an equal voice in the deliberations.

Attitude Proved
State department officials pointed to President Roosevelt's peace appeals to Chancellor Hitler of Germany and President Moscicki of Poland as further evidence of the official American attitude on proposals such as advanced by II Duce.

In these appeals, Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that the sovereign rights of Poland should be respected in any peace negotiations. Poland and Germany being sovereign governments, the President said, each nation should accord "complete respect to the independence and territorial integrity of the other."

The best method of effecting a settlement of the dispute, Mr. Roosevelt added, is through direct negotiation, arbitration or through conciliation on the part of a neutral.

Poland would be at a distinct disadvantage if it is excluded from any parley dealing with the existing issues, officials asserted.

It is possible that the American attitude will be conveyed to the British government since the latter is keeping United States diplomatic authorities informed of various steps undertaken.

Department Watching
Meanwhile, the state department continued its watchful waiting for European developments. It is ready to set into motion the carefully planned emergency program for evacuating thousands of Americans who would find themselves without transportation if war starts.

Department chieftains, headed by Secretary Cordell Hull, assembled yesterday for the first general Sunday conference since the Munich conference last Fall. After the meeting, officials refused to state whether the United States planned further peace appeals.

Two Columbus Youths Killed

Six Persons Injured As Auto, Truck Collide Near Delaware

DELAWARE, Aug. 28—Two Columbus youths were killed, and six other persons were injured, three critically, in a head-on truck-auto collision near Delaware early today.

According to the Delaware county sheriff's office, the dead were Gazar Basmajin, 17, driver of the auto, and Robert Kelly, 16, a passenger.

Head injuries left three other passengers of the auto in critical condition in Delaware hospital, deputies said. They were: Sue Pickering, of Columbus; Raymond Little, 19, of Westerville, and Lowell Mason, 20, of nearby Sunbury. Mason had "hitch-hiked" a ride with Basmajin, officers reported.

Less seriously hurt were Marjorie Whipples, 16, and Donald McLeod, 16, both of Columbus, and the truck driver, a Michigan man whose name authorities did not know.

The deputies reported that the passenger car was traveling east toward Sunbury on Route 36 when it collided head-on with the truck on a hill. The time of the accident was 1:30 a. m.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 28—James R. Marker, former state highway director, and his wife, were reported recovering today from injuries suffered in an auto accident in Columbus.

Marker told authorities he had slowed down near an intersection when his auto was struck from the rear by another car. Officers said the second car was driven by Robert Bottman, 28, of Columbus. Bottman and three passengers in his auto suffered minor injuries.

Sluggish Hunted

HOLLYWOOD'S "moon madness" slugger claimed a new victim in Miss Myrtle Wagner who was slugged, attacked and left in a dying condition by a prowler who entered her home. Los Angeles police said the case paralleled that of the slugging and slaying of Miss Anya Sosoyeva, exotic Russian dancer, some months ago.

The Ohio State Employment Service

Columbus, Ohio

Gentlemen:

The Ohio State Employment Service has been a great help and benefit to us. When we needed a good cook for our Resort Hotel, The Ohio State Employment Service was very prompt and efficient in supplying us with just the type of individual we wanted. Later when we had to have a waitress, we naturally referred to The Ohio State Employment Service. The first girl you sent met with our requirements and of course she was hired.

We wish to express our appreciation of the sincere cooperation and efficient service offered us by your office. Be assured that when we need any additional employees we shall communicate with you at once.

Sincerely,
